

-----Original Message-----

From: CESS Ethics [<mailto:cess@nuffield.ox.ac.uk>]

Sent: Monday, May 16, 2016 12:30 AM

To: John Jensenius III <john.jensenius@nuffield.ox.ac.uk>

Subject: Ethics review for CESS application

Dear Ray Duch,

We are writing about your application ETH-160407759 to the Centre for Experimental Social Sciences titled,

'Tax Compliance Additional Experiments'

has been ethically approved.

The reviewers comments are copied below.

<https://cess-web.nuff.ox.ac.uk/ethics/applications/newapp>

Yours sincerely,
CESS Administrators.

Reviewer 1 comments:

Reviewer 2 comments:

The proposed experiment adheres to CESS' ethical standards. In particular, the proposed extension specifies clearly when and how subjects are going to be paid, does not use deception, and does not impose any physical or psychological harm beyond what subjects would encounter in their daily life. In general, the elements of the experiment are mostly default tools employed in experimental economics and political science. I have no objects to the experimental setup and, specifically, no objections to the proposed extensions.